

ABSTRACT

PT. UAP AIR is a company in the field of trade move who live in the region Bandung. The company sells a variety of products of technical equipment such as power tools, air compressor, water pump, generator sets, welding and other products. Recording sales and accounts receivable management company PT. Water vapor is a very important thing in the business keberlasungan. Because of this the company recording sales gain. But there are still a lot of difficulties in running the business processes in the company if the calculation, recording and reporting is still done using manual And if the accounts are not managed properly it can result in losses that will be experienced by the company. This application is built with the background of the recording file is saved too much and should look for the files one by one when they wanted to do the calculation. Receivables management that is applied to this application receivable aging analysis method, this system uses a programming language Code Igniter (CI) and MySql database. And this app also generates accounting records in the form of journals, ledgers and produces a list of accounts receivable and report aging schedule.

Keywords: Keywords: Aplications, Sales, Accounts Receivable Management, Aging Schedule, Code Igniter