The sorrow and healing process of family members left behind by the passing of another family member are complex aspects within the dynamics of family life. The loss of a family member can evoke a series of emotions and challenges that impact the entire family. This study aims to alleviate and address the grief resulting from the loss of a family member within the bereaved family through a redesign approach utilizing a healing environment strategy, emphasizing mental health recovery for the affected family. Therefore, the redesign of the Priyangan Social Fund Foundation Funeral Home in Bandung Regency needs to undergo a redesign process with a healing environment approach to reduce and address the mental anguish experienced by the facility's users.
