

ABSTRACT

Perfectionism is behaviour that refers to efforts not to have any flaws by setting high standards in order to achieve perfection or the ideal self. Fear of failure is correlated with perfectionist behaviour which has a tendency to achieve perfection, and considers fear of failure as a motivating factor in efforts to achieve high levels of performance or prevent themselves from failing to actualize their potential. Based on these reasons, the author created an installation work that shows a person's persistence in trying to achieve perfection, even though they feel afraid of failure. It is hoped that the final project will raise public awareness of the importance of respecting oneself and every effort that has been made to achieve every desired thing.
