Precisely on December 1st people in Indonesia also commemorate World AIDS Day. World AIDS Day was initiated on the basis of concerns over rising AIDS among the community. There is no cure for AIDS so far, and can only be prevented by controlling its spread effect. By definition AIDS stands for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, which is a set of symptoms that obtained from reduced immunity, immune system damage caused by HIV infection. Given the rapid increase of HIV in Indonesia , and the more years of continued increases, some health organizations make a lot of events to mark World AIDS day with various series and forms recalling the event with the intention that in the world , especially in Indonesia HIV live among us .

1.2 Research Background

The concept of integrating social aims with profit making has been an emerging trend in the world today, especially in the wake of the 2007-2009 when the crisis hit the financial sector. Social Enterprise is at the very core of this new movement to integrate social aims with profits, taking root in an increasing number of circles today, ranging from the field of international development, to impact investing, and even public policy (Poon, 2011). Social entrepreneur's existence is believed to develop in future since there are so many emerging social problem all over the world.

In addition to the definition about social enterprise above, There have been many approaches taken in the interpretation of social entrepreneurship in the west (Bull, 2008; Haugh, 2005; Tan, Williams, & Tan, 2005; Thompson, 2008). According to Thompson (2008), a social enterprise is an organization which creates not only economic but also social wealth, yet is able to generate revenue and afford needed resource to perform satisfactorily. (Bull, 2008) on the other hand, adapts the definitions used by related organizations such as the Department of Trade and Industry in UK and Social Enterprise Alliance, and views social enterprise more as venture with specific social mission and objectives, and achieves them through entrepreneurial strategies. Yet another view is given by Haugh (2005) who defines social enterprise as the process of creating a social enterprise and that process involves all activity associated with the perception of opportunities to create social value. At the same time, there are also scholars such as Tan, Williams & Tan (2005) who approach the matter from the entrepreneur perspective. They define a social entrepreneur as a legal person engaged in the process of entrepreneurship that involves a segment of society with the altruistic objective that benefit it.

Another definition of social enterprise expressed by J. Gregory Dees, Professor of the practice in Social Entrepreneurship, founding faculty director of Duke University's center for the Advancement of Social Entrepreneurship, and often referred to as the "Father of Entrepreneurship Education. He broadly defines social enterprise as an organization which aims to fulfill a social mission by implementing innovative problem solving strategies and demonstrates high accountability to the public (Dees, 2006). The author can conclude from all the definition about social entrepreneurship above that social entrepreneurship is one specifications of entrepreneurship that integrate social aims with profits, it also has a specific social mission and objectives to create a social value at the end social entrepreneurship not only gaining an economic wealth but also social wealth.

The Emergence of social enterprise took place a long time ago. History has recorded the emergence of social enterprise as taken based on Daryl Poon (2011).

Social Enterprise has been in existence for many centuries, Social Entrepreneurs and social enterprise have been in existence for many centuries, but only came into prominence in recent decades when the particular label of "social entrepreneur" has been intentionally used to identify them, an effort in large part pioneered and actively championed through Ashoka, a nonprofit institution that identifies and supports leading entrepreneurs globally in an effort to support social change.

However, even before Ashoka was founded in 1981 and subsequently popularized the term, history had witnessed numerous social entrepreneurs responsible for the many social innovations we have come to find commonplace today. The epitome of such historical social entrepreneurship is Florence Nightingale, who had revolutionized care-giving by founding the modern nursing profession.

The social entrepreneurship recently are rising up in the Asian society. In my opinion, Asia is the perfect place to conduct the Social entrepreneurship activity. There are two main indicators that show Asia as a perfect place to conduct social entrepreneurship. The social issues like poverty, joblessness and lack of reliable access to basic services like education, energy, health and water. Another indicators is environmental issues like air pollution, illegal logging and water pollution. In 2012 Asian Development Bank (ADB) was conducted the Social Enterprises Forum Amid an explosion in Asian social enterprise set up to tackle the region's social and environmental problems. In that forum Tommy Hutchinson, the founder of i-genius, an international community of social entrepreneurs stated that the growth of social enterprise in recent years is due to governments and corporations realizing the potential of community-based efforts, consumers making more ethical decisions about what they buy, and people wanting more freedom and creativity from their work (the guardian, 2012). He added Asian countries have fuelled this growth in different ways. China is advanced in technology, Thailand has the government that is most switched on, and Indonesia has a strong, rural based social business (the guardian, 2012). However, if we compare the numbers of social entrepreneurship activity in Asia to the other continent, the number is the lowest. As we can see from picture below.

Source: GEM Social Entrepreneurship Report (2009)

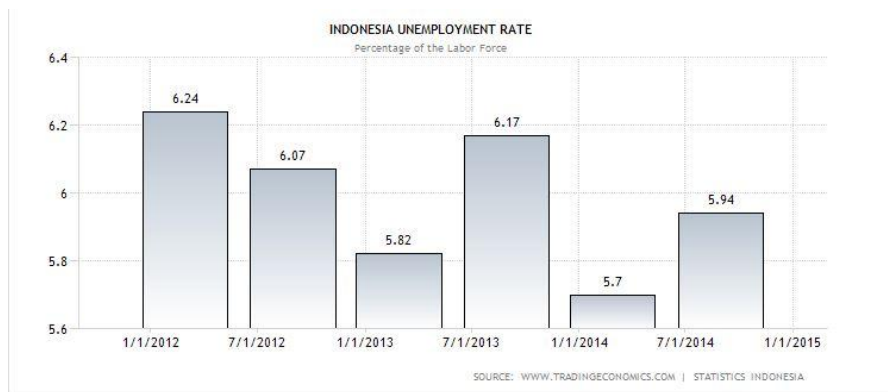

From the data above we can conclude that countries in Asia especially south-east Asia need to boost the growth of social entrepreneurship activity. From figure 1.19 we can conclude that the rate of social entrepreneurship early stage activity in South-East Asia region is only 1,6%.

Sustainability has become a favorite buzzword among development practitioners over the past decade. ‘Sustainable’ has been used not only to characterize a desired future for communities and for society as a whole, but also to describe the desired impact of development interventions and the desired state of organizations working for a sustainable future. There are several definitions regarding sustainability in entrepreneurship. Innovative behavior of single or organization operating in the private business sector who are seeing environmental or social issues as a core objective and competitive advantage” Gerlach(2003, p. 3). Other statement that is stated by Cohen and Winn (2007, p. 35) “The examination of how opportunities to bring into existence future goods and services are discovered, created, and exploited, by whom, and with what economic, psychological, social, and environmental consequences”. "Create profitable enterprises and achieve certain environmental and/or social objectives, pursue and achieve what is often referred to as the double bottom-line or triple bottom-line (Choi and Gray, 2008, p. 559). It is two concepts that Sustainable Entrepreneurship derives from. Social Entrepreneurship has been described as incorporating a double bottom line within the company's mission - balancing the economic and social returns on investment. So, the author can conclude the indicator that can prove the sustainability of social entrepreneurship organization is balancing both social (people) and economic (profit) returns on investment.

Indonesia as the largest archipelagic state in the world, by area and population has a potentials that can be developed. Indonesia also known for its wealth, both natural resources and human resources. Despite the fact about its wealth, Indonesia still cannot combine it into something that can bring a prosperity to its people. The indicators are the unemployment and poverty rate in Indonesia is relatively high. The numbers are 5.94 percent for unemployment rate in 2014 and 11.0 percent for poverty rate (World Bank and Badan Pusat Statistik, 2015).

To overcome these problems, the one way out is through entrepreneurship, because by doing entrepreneurship we can reduce the number unemployment, poverty and economic alleviation and creating more jobs (Kompas, 2010). However the number of entrepreneurs in Indonesia still less compared to the countries in same region like Malaysia, Thailand and Singapore. In order to boost the national economy, the number of entrepreneurs need to be increased at least 2 percent as stated by Chairman of the Board Diplomat Success Challenge (DSC) 2013 Surjanto Yasaputera. The Nobel prizes Muhammad Yunus also encourage young people to think about become job creator not a job seeker. The young generation has the creative power to build a social business and overcome the social problem (Kompas, 2014). Rhenald Khassali the professor of Management, Faculty of Economics, University of Indonesia also stated that the the social problems and interest in entrepreneurship can be solved through social entrepreneurship. Because social entrepreneurship has an entrepreneurial spirit and social life (SWA, 2014).

According to Bornstein & Susan (Wibowo, 2013) social entrepreneurship movement is a process undertaken by the citizens building or transforming institutions to improve the solution of social problems, such as poverty, disease, literacy and writing, environmental damage, human rights violations and corruption , in order to build a better life for all. Thus, assessment of SWA (Wibowo, 2013) stated that social entrepreneurship increasingly proven to cure social ills such as poverty, underdevelopment and public health. This means that the entrepreneurial movement has increasingly believed to provide hope and benefit to society at large.

There are several social problems that we can find in Indonesia like poverty, environmental damage and the one that recently become a main issue, drugs abuse. Rumah Cemara is a community based organization which concern on reducing the drugs abuse. They try to reduce the drugs abuse by spreading all the information about the damage of drugs and conducting several programs related to drugs abuse prevention. The drugs itself is not a new commodity in Indonesia. Indonesian people has known drugs since the colonial era when the Dutch colony planted cannabis plants in Aceh and Erythroxyton Coca (Cocaine) in East Java for their export commodity. At that time the Dutch colony made a regulation that prevented the abuse of that plants, but the regulation didn't include the synthetic drugs that have a same effect like cannabis and cocaine. That phenomena are believed as a root-cause the drugs abuse in Indonesia. In globalization era the barriers among countries are less, it becomes an opportunity to deliver the drugs from one country to another. As the time goes by, in today era since the development of international relations where politics take a part in it and also globalization era, drugs has become a commodity that can gain a huge profit for all stakeholders who play in drugs syndicate. In globalization era the barriers among countries are less, it becomes an opportunity to deliver the drugs from one country to another which mean the drugs distribution through black market is easier. This phenomena occurred in Indonesia as well where so many headlines on newspaper regarding the distribution of drugs. This situation draw attention our current president Mr. Joko Widodo. He stated that Indonesia is currently in a state of emergency drugs and instructed all heads of regions to fight against drugs abuse in their respective regions (VOA Indonesia, 2015). The picture below is the data regarding the drugs user in Indonesia.

Source: Kompasiana (2015)

From the data above, Badan Narkotika Nasional (BNN) estimates the number of drugs users around 5 million people or 2% from Indonesia's population in 2015. We can see that the numbers of the drugs users in Indonesia are increasing each year, which is the main reason why our president stated that our country in state of emergency drugs now. Later on in effort to fight against the drugs abuse, our governance will spend more money to fund the drugs prevention program. From the Rumah Cemara perspective, this situation become a positive signal because the government efforts to fight against drugs abuse are in accordance with the main program in Rumah Cemara. The indicators we can see that for this year, Rumah cemara gain more funds from governance. This funds they will use in free treatment center for drugs users.

Other issue regarding the drugs abuse issue is from the regulation perspective. During the orde baru era, government underestimated the drugs abuse issue. They believed people are uphold the pancasila and religions principle, so they would not use drugs in wrong way. But the fact is different from what the government believe. Later on, government showed their intensity on drugs abuse issue by approved law number 5 of 1997 about psychotropic substances and law number 22 1997 about narcotics. In 2009 the law was amendment. If on the law in 1997 the drugs users were seen as a criminal not as a victim and need to be punished by putting them in jail, in 2009 the law was amendment. Based on the law number 54 2009, the drugs users have a right to be treated in rehabilitation center. From Rumah Cemara perspective, the law is very helpful because the drugs users can be treated in treatment center as Rumah Cemara providing a free treatment center regarding the drugs distributor the law is very assertive, as they implement the death penalty for the distributors. It was still fresh in our mind about the death penalty to the drugs distributor from Australia, Brazil and Nigeria.

From the political and legal perspectives, author finds several problem phenomena regarding the drugs abuse.

According to Kasat Reserse Narkoba AKBP Nugroho Arianto, in 2014 they have handled 207 drugs cases and caught 274 suspects, from the 274 suspects it divided to 168 people who had drugs, 97 drugs distributors and 8 drugs producers (Detik, 2015). That numbers are increasing if we compare to 2013 the numbers were 174 cases with 247 suspects. From the figure 1.11 we can see the numbers of drugs abusers in jail. In 2013, the numbers of the drugs abusers in jail are 1,125 in total. From the picture above we can see the problem phenomena, if we compare the total numbers of the convicts to the jail's capacity, it is overcapacity. Whereas, there is a regulation UU no 54 2009 stated that the drugs users have a right to be treated in rehabilitation center. However, according to Rumah Cemara’s knowledge the government implementation of the regulation is nothing. All the victim in this drugs abuse case, they were sent to jail directly. While, in Rumah Cemara treatment center, they only treat 30 people due to the limited capacity on their treatment center.

There are also several issues regarding drugs abuse from the social perspective. Most people in Indonesia see the drugs users as a criminal. They feel their existence among the society is harmful, they think that the drugs abuse can give a negative impact to the society. Therefore, it is not surprise if so many case about the drugs users who are evicted from their society, even they are evicted from their family. Another example, the former drugs abuse get a little chance for getting a job. Most of the workplace will reject them if they know about their bad record regarding drugs, This phenomena was occurred within the society in Indonesia and this kind of experience that accepted by the founder of become the reason why Rumah Cemara was established. There is a less effort from the government to solve this problem. If there is a social treatment program from the government, the implementation is not really effective as the former drugs abuse still suffer a bad experience from the society. The founders of Rumah Cemara see this kind of situation need to be changed. Rumah Cemara try to change the society perspective towards the drugs users. Through their several activity they involve the former drugs users to a social activity. Through the activity Rumah Cemara try to make an interaction between the drugs users and the society. Hopefully, from this interaction, society will change their perspective towards the drugs users, and the drugs users also can give a contribution to the society.

Author discover other problem phenomena. The picture above shows the budget allocations for the activity in Rumah Cemara. The budget allocation for their program are not balance. Their fund resource are coming from 3 sources: international funding, government funding and private sectors funding. The international funding they use it for their main program. The government funding, they use it for rehabilitation program and the private sectors funding, they use it for supporting event. For the sport development program they have not enough budget for running the program. Therefore one of the sport development program which is boxing forcedly to be stopped whereas the sport development program is an effective program for the former drugs user to have a positive activity to set their mind free from drugs. We can see from the expenditure picture above the highest allocation is for prevention program which is 29% and the second is treatment program which is 18%, while sport development include in others 18%. It showed that there is no certain budget for the sport development program, and they feel they need additional fund if they want to continue the program. According to Rumah Cemara they need 2 billion rupiah if they want to cover all the budget in running their programs including sport development, but from the picture above we can see the budget allocation is only 810 million rupiah which is far from the ideal numbers of the expected budgets.

Sustainability has become a favorite buzzword among development practitioners over the past decade. ‘Sustainable’ has been used to characterize a desired future communities and for society as a whole. “The problem is that the vast majority of these ventures, as they exist today, are not sustainable. Unless these organizations develop new models that enable social enterprises to deliver double bottom line results, or find permanent funding subsidies for their activities, their chances of long-term survival are not good.” (Shorr, 2006). Rumah Cemara is chosen as object study in this research to define their own strategy to be able to sustain their program. The picture above shows the budget allocations for the activity in Rumah Cemara. The budget allocation for their program are not balance. Their fund resource are coming from 3 sources: international funding, government funding and private sectors funding. The international funding they use it for their main program. The government funding, they use it for rehabilitation program and the private sectors funding, they use it for supporting event. For the sport development program they have not enough budget for running the program. Therefore one of the sport development program which is boxing forcedly to be stopped whereas the sport development program is an effective program for the former drugs user to have a positive activity to set their mind free from drugs. We can see from the expenditure picture above the highest allocation is for prevention program which is 29% and the second is treatment program which is 18%, while sport development include in others 18%. It showed that there is no certain budget for the sport development program, and they feel they need additional fund if they want to continue the program. Rumah Cemara also facing a condition where they have a limited capacity on their treatment center. They only able to accommodate 30 people, while the numbers of drugs victim in Bandung around a thousand people and still counting. The regulation implementation by the government also become a problem. In our constitution, it is stated UU no 54 2009 stated that the drugs users have a right to be treated in rehabilitation center. However we can’t see the government implementation on this regulation, most of the drugs victim directly send to the jail.
