

Abstract

Paradox that occurs at this time is the number of patients who come to rehab, but most of them are many who fled. It is not caused due to the lack of skilled medical personnel in practice, but rather caused by the condition of the rehabilitation treatment facilities and operational management are less healthy and hygienic as a result of uncontrolled management system and management of a comprehensive building maintenance and periodic. The existence of rehabilitation is one of public health care facilities that are needed. Number of drug addicts in the city of Bandung became the highest compared to other regions in West Java.

One of the efforts in supporting the healing process, namely through the creation of a healing environment. Environment that heals (Healing Environment) is an environment that can encourage healing through physical elements, for example the selection of building materials, colors, textures and so forth. Selection of appropriate building materials and environmentally friendly will affect patients in drug rehabilitation.
