

ABSTRACT

This research discussed on how news report on online media Detik.com and Kompas.com framed about The Revised of Terrorism Law After Sarinah Bomb Attact . The news has been analyzed from these two media. The news has been published at the same time with the same theme, but have differences in content delivery.

The method of this research was Pan and Kosicki framing model. This method uses four type of structural dimensions that consist of Syntactic structures which correspond on how reporter constructs the event. Script structures which correspond on how reporter tells the event and make into a news, Thematic sturctures which correspond on how reporter reveals his/her point of fiew about event and make it into proposition and sentences, also Rhetorical sturctures which correspond on how reporter emphasizes some meaning into the news.

The results of this research showed framing between Detik.com and Kompas.com, news content lead to positive news about progress the revised of Terrorism Law. Online media Detik.com seem neutral, while news framing by Kompas.com more daring and critically respond about the development of the revision Terrorism Law.

Keywords : framing, Pan and Kosicki, online media, revised of the Terrorism Law.