ABSTRACT

Technology in Indonesia is now very rapidly growing, with this community easily obtain information. The development of technology can expand the existing business context, nowadays many Indonesian people use technology to build business due to big opportunity. With the many problems that exist in Indonesia opens market opportunities for business people who want to provide solutions to the problem. Providing problem solutions should have a mature concept for people to use and be well realized. In making the competition system there are steps that must be taken to fit the prescribed procedures and in Indonesia most of them make the competition system manually and not integrate well. Designing an application to help create an integrated competition system so getting maximum results and can save manufacturing time can be a solution in this case. Technology is helpful at the point it just depends on us when executing the problems encountered.
