

ABSTRACT

Interpersonal communication in family circle is a communication that exists between parents and children. Parents have an important role and great responsibility in increasing their children's motivation to memorize Al-Qur'an, the process of tahfizh Al-Qur'an must be harmonized with the purpose of education along with children's activities at home. Thus creates the synergy between school and parents very important. To achieve these goals, the communication pattern among parents and children has to be conformable. This study aims to determine and analyze the patterns of interpersonal communication between parents and children in order to increase their motivation to memorize Al-Qur'an. This research will be conducted on students of STP MI Khoiru Ummah who have achievements in tahfizh field. This research will be conducted using qualitative research methods using the constructivism paradigm. It aims to explore, know and construct existing social realities, regarding the patterns of communication that are formed in the family, especially in the process of tahfizh Al-Qur'an. The result of this study showed that children who have high levels of achievement in tahfizh come from family that apply a consensual communication pattern. This pattern of consensual communication is a pattern that has a high level of interaction and conformity between family members. With the application of this communication pattern, parents can increase the motivation to memorize Al-Qur'an in children and can achieve the memorization target.
