Maulidja, Rezky Agus. 2019. Game Interface Design to Preserve South Borneo Special Culinary. Visual Communication Design Department. Faculty of Creative Industries. Telkom University.

Culinary is one of Indonesia's cultural riches that must be preserved. As time goes by, Indonesia's culinary began to be forgotten. Now we can find many fast food restaurants circulating in the community. In addition, if compared with other foods, such as Padang cuisine, South Borneo's culinary is less well known. Padang cuisine restaurants can be found in almost cities in Indonesia. Padang cuisine restaurants network developed from Sumatra to Java and Bali. In South Borneo, Padang cuisine restaurants can also be found. As Indonesian citizens, we must play a role in the South Borneo culinary preservation efforts. The game can be used as a medium for delivering information through its interface design. The analytical method used is qualitative with literature methods and observation methods as data collection techniques. This design is expected to allow players to understand the information conveyed through the game display.
