

ABSTRACT

In October 2018, the mass media reportedly preached the news of the hoax of an Activist Ratna Sarumpaet who suffered persecution. Some of the mass media that do a lot of coverage are online media Tribunnews.com and Detik.com. Because the two media have ideological value for speed in publishing news.

This study aims to find out how online media Tribunnews.com and Detik.com frame a hoax confession of Ratna Sarumpaet using qualitative research methods. News will be analyzed using the Pan and Kosicki framing device which has four structures, namely syntax, script, thematic, and rhetorical.

The results showed that Tribunnews.com framed the news of Ratna Sarumpaet's hoaks as a political issue, while Detik.com framed the news hoaks Ratna Sarumpaet as a legal matter. But the two media both viewed the case of Ratna Sarumpaet as merely a misinformation ahead of the 2019 presidential election.
