

ABSTRACT

Putri, Ismi Despi Ariza. 2019. Directing Of Documentary Films “Mendaki Asa” About Education To Tribal Children In Bathin VIII District. Visual Communication Design Study Program. Faculty of Creative Industries. Telkom University

Education is a process of gaining knowledge, learning, and skills, and is one of the habits passed down from generation to generation. In the education process the government is a facilitator in the education process. The government has various programs to facilitate education, so there is no reason for citizens not to participate in education. But the government program is not going well because there are still citizens who have not received education. Especially for citizens who live in rural areas. Like the indigenous people who live in the Jambi deep forest, the Suku Anak Dalam group. That is because there are several factors that become obstacles in the education process. The factor is improper infrastructure so that it becomes one of the obstacles in providing educational assistance. But apart from that there are still Anak Dalam tribes who follow the traditions of their ancestors so they cannot stay permanently. To be able to inform these factors requires a media that can tell the truth. One of the right media to convey this fact is a documentary film.

Keywords: Education, Suku Anak Dalam, Government, Documentary Films