

Abstract

The life of modern society is not spared from socializing and communicating to be able to exchange information. The Office of Communication and Information in West Java is a regional apparatus engaged in communication and information in the community and government. other functions in it. Besides that Diskominfo West Java is also more than just a shared workspace but also a space to support one another. Today, information and communication is very rapidly developing, this is used for various groups to carry out activities not apart from the use of technology that can make it easier. By utilizing the facilities at the Office of Communication and Information Technology for workers and the people of West Java as a means to work, exchange information, as well as educational facilities for digital communities. lifting the identity of West Java Diskominfo office through information technology-based interior design, and can improve the performance and productivity of workers in the West Java Communication and Information Service