ABSTRACT

Quiz is one of the tests that are usually used to train or find out the ability of students during the learning process in the classroom, whether the student is able to continue further education or not, currently there are two kinds of quiz, written quiz, and online quiz. The written quiz has been applied for a long time, and currently there is an online quiz where this quiz does not need to use stationery or fees for the exam, and students do not need to delete if there is an error in answering, therefore this online quiz is usually used for work tests such as tests to enter CPNS, UN, and usually in the world of college level education there are already some teachers who use this online quiz, because the online quiz is more effective. In this online quiz research, the software used by this writer is xampp, and the device development method used is the waterfall method. The research hope of this online quiz aims to find out whether this online exam is very effective or not.
