

ABSTRACT

Freely expressing yourself is the right of all human in the whole world, even if they are different in races, gender, faith, etc. we all have the same amount of right especially when it comes to expressing yourself. even in the society we often hear sentences like " be yourself " and " freely expressing yourself" but if these sentences touch even just a small one to expressing your gender, society's perspective is like turn 180 degree from " freely expressing yourself " to " but not like that kind of expression " it's like the society want to make a boundarie in the word of freely. i as an artist i've talked to people who expressing their gender and some of them said " society are rejecting us because they're not understand what is gender expression " i'm agree to disagree because i believe that human doesn't need to understand each other for they to respect each other. Empathizing is the right thing to do for human if they want to respect each other, with people empathizing each other things like judgmental etc will not happen, and i also believe that all human in the world have a feeling to empathize, big or small it's depends to the individual, and i as an artist take this as my advantage in my artwork. In my installation video i'm playing with room to help the art to shine more, so i paint the room to black and i have one monitor and several mannequin in there. the point of this room is to expand the video on monitor so the audience can feel it directly not just from his eyes but from all his senses the video in monitor represent the people who expressing their gender and the mannequin is represent the society. i'm as the artist hoping that the artwork can erase the boundaries like minor to mayor etc.
