

ABSTRACT

Seeing the news about a human rights activist in Papua who was reported as a suspect by tribunnews.com regarding the conflict that occurred in Papua made researchers interested in seeing the framing of tribunnews.com on September 4, 2019 which was viewed from the syntactic, thematic, script and rhetorical structures. In this study, researchers used qualitative methods with a constructivist paradigm. This study also uses the Pan and Kosicki framing analysis approach. The results of this study indicate that the analysis of the four Pan & Kosicki framing structures of the news published by tribunnews.com highlights who (siapa) and what (apa) elements, the three news texts contain about a Veronica Koman and what is related about Veronica Koman related with his determination as a suspect until the clarification he did via Australian television. Overall, the news about Veronica Koman was framed by tribunnews.com negatively, Veronica Koman was portrayed as someone who opposed the government so that she was named a suspect.
