

ABSTRACT

CODJ : E-Learning Platform Application Of Information Technology : Content Management and Contributor Module is a web-based application, which aims to facilitate teachers and students for vocational students studying programming languages. With this, the CoDJ application can help students who want to learn programming languages. There are also practice questions provided so that you can follow the exercises contained in the application, there is also management in the application so that the application is in accordance with a predetermined concept. in applications that are built using the Prototype model, MySQL database and using the CodeIgneter framework, testing on applications is done by black-box testing methods.

Keywords: CoDJ , E – Learning