ABSTRACT Rumentang Siang art building is an Artdeco-style heritage building in the city of Bandung. But now the building is in unfit condition for an art performance building both in terms of comfort and interior appearance. The problem in this building is in the auditorium that has been physically and acoustically reduced. Then the approach to be used is interior redesign with ergonomics and aesthetic approaches. Redesigns include lobby, performance and stage rooms, operator rooms, training rooms, hallways, and management offices. The design results that use the concept of aesthetic Art Deco and have followed the standard ergonomics (comfort) of an art building. This design can be able to add educational facilities about the performing arts.
