

ABSTRACT

The Battle of Bojongkokosan was the first convoy war that occurred during the Indonesian independence war between Sukabumi fighters and a convoy of British allied forces. This incident should be known and understood for us as the successor of Indonesian nation, that in the past our nation had the determination and high sense of nationalism to defend its independence. However, after Indonesia became independent and entered the modern world, the nationalism of the Indonesian people began to disappear. Especially the younger generation of Indonesia. The battle of Bojongkokosan began to be forgotten. One of the reasons for the decline in nationalism is the lack of knowledge of the younger generation on the history of their own nation. In fact, knowing and studying history can increase a sense of nationalism. Therefore, the aim of this research is to create a media for introducing the history of the Bojongkokosan incident so that it can be better known and can increase the nationalism of Indonesia's young generation. This study uses the method of observation, questionnaires, interviews, literature study and comparison matrix analysis. It can be concluded that one of the suitable media to tell the history of the Bojongkokosan incident to the younger generation is digital comics on the Line Webtoon application because it has a lot of enthusiasts. The digital comics will package information through storylines and illustrations that are easy to read and understand so that they can introduce the Bojongkokosan incident and increase nationalism to Indonesia's young generation.
