

ABSTRACT

Since the beginning of 2020, the Covid-19 virus has begun to enter Indonesia and has become a pandemic over time, the rapid spread of the virus has occurred due to the habits of people who often visit crowded places and do not practice healthy lifestyles such as wearing masks, washing hands and the like. This has an impact on the world of education, especially in tertiary institutions, where new students are forced to carry out lecture activities online and cannot socialize as new students should. Based on this, the author chose a guidebook to help new students when starting college life after Covid-19, collecting data related to this topic, the author conducted interviews with several sources, observations, and conducted literature studies for clearer information.
