

ABSTRACT

Interior Design Building Faculty of Creative Industry University Of Telkom Bandung with New Normal Design

This design is motivated by the phenomenon of the Covid-19 pandemic that emerged in 2020 and will still exist until 2021. With the Covid-19 pandemic, the education sector has been paralyzed, especially face-to-face lectures. In 2021 the minister of education Nadiem Makarim announced to immediately open the education sector to undergo face-to-face learning, one of which is universities for those with practicum courses in the new normal period. This pressure requires the University to be able to adapt to the pandemic situation so that lectures can run safely from the Covid-19 virus. With these demands, Telkom University needs to create an interior design design system as a form of peace in the Covid-19 pandemic. Telkom University is a university that has a faculty of fine arts and design whose learning activities are required face-to-face and this meets the criteria of the minister of education in order to revive the education sector in the new normal period later. In order to realize an adaptive university in the new normal, a design is needed that supports the creation of a safe and comfortable learning environment.
