

ABSTRACT

Dental problems in Indonesia are often considered trivial by the public. Supported by the results of surveys and health research conducted, more than half of the population has problems with their teeth. Especially in adolescents who mostly adhere to modern diets and lifestyles, lack of awareness in maintaining and caring for dental and oral hygiene has the potential to cause health problems. Therefore, adolescents need to understand the negative impact of neglecting dental health, so they are motivated to maintain their dental hygiene to support a productive adolescent period. This study uses qualitative methods, based on data obtained through literature studies, interviews, questionnaires, and observations. Using digital comics as the media, it is hoped that it can attract the attention of audiences so that they can convey information properly to increase awareness of taking care of personal dental hygiene.
