

ABSTRACT

Sundayana, Almayra Audrey. 2021 Production Design on Web Series About The Life of People with Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD). Final Exam. Communication Visual Design Study Program. Faculty of Creative Industries. Telkom University. Bandung.

Obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD) is intrusive thoughts (obsessions) and repetitive behaviors (compulsions) to relive the anxiety caused by the obsessions. The phenomenon that happen is a misperception of OCD due to the naming made by the media and the community, the word OCD is use as an adjective word to pointing someone who likes cleanliness and tidiness, so that it has an impact to people with OCD. Therefore, media is needed to serve knowledge to reach the wider community, so that misperceptions that occur are reduced. The media that will be used is a web series, so that people know information about OCD disorder and it is impact on people with disabilities. The method used is a mixed method by analyzing OCD disorders from a psychology's point of view and through interviews and observations using ethnography, questionnaires and literature studies to get the concept of designing the work. The production designer is in charge of designing the visual aspect of the story, including the depiction of the atmosphere and emotions of the characters. The design of this final project is expected to be able to serve knowledge about people who have OCD disorders so that they can reduce misperceptions that occur in the community.

Keywords: OCD Disorders, Web Series, Production Design.