

ABSTRACT

Information systems are an important requirement for companies or government agencies. Likewise at PT. PLN Rayon Majalaya, with the information system making all activities can be recorded properly. Similarly, the Web based Office Management and Supply Application also has an important role. The Need for Application Management and Web based Office Stationery Supply is an important requirement in order to make records more controlled. This can reduce the occurrence of errors in manual recording. The method of developing Web based Office Stationery and Providing Application Management using the waterfall. The stages used in the waterfall method are Software Needs Analysis, Design, Coding or coding, and Testing. The application is built using the PHP programming language, designed using HTML and CSS, and for databases using MySQL. This application is capable of managing office stationery supplies, adding office stationery supplies, managing office stationery requests, and submitting office stationery requests.

Keywords: Application, Information System, Management, Supply.