The culture of urbanization in modern society is a common phenomenon. Population movements that occur very dynamically make the population distribution map uncontrollable. Urbanization, which should be a centralized activity, has actually been eliminated in the midst of the urban community due to several aspects. As a result of this provision, a new ecosystem is formed, namely the urban village. The urban village is the meeting point between the traditional city and the modern city. In the urban village ecosystem there are people who have their respective roles, one of which is the mother. The existence of the mother becomes a great role in the smallest community in the urban village, namely the family. Unfortunately, this great role does not guarantee that mothers have a good quality of life in the urban village ecosystem. This final project will describe how a mother who aspires to improve the quality of her life so that she can become a woman who is able to raise the degree of her own life and the family she has. The imaging uses photography as a Final Project.
