

ABSTRACT

Angklung is one of the traditional musical instruments that is best known by a wide audience and comes from Sundanese culture, Initially this musical instrument was used by farmers in order to fertilize the fields, but over time this musical instrument developed into one of the tools used by street musicians in seeking sustenance. However, the lives of these street musicians in Angklung are not as smooth as they seem. They have to migrate to crowded areas in order to earn bigger rupiah. They have to fight the hot sun for their daily life. Their goal is not only to make money, but there is a bigger goal than that, namely, to introduce Angklung Traditional Musical Instrument Culture to a wide audience, and to play modern music so that the listeners will be fresher. The documentary film entitled “The Entertainer of the Streets” with a duration of 12 minutes aims to make people today know more about Angklung musical instruments and can also raise Angklung street musicians.
