The Office of the Regional People's Representative Council of Banggai Laut Regency is a regional people's representative institution at the district level. Which has a function as 1) legislation, relating to the formation of regional regulations; 2) Budget, the authority of the Regional Revenue and Expenditure Budget (APBD); 3) Supervision, PERDA and other regulations and authorities to oversee the implementation of local government policies. This unrepresentative room in the DPRD office greatly affects the work activities of the members of the council and also the office staff. Office design trends are constantly changing with the times, a comfortable office space will make the productivity of workers continue to increase. The design is intended to meet the standardization of the Banggai Laut Regency DPRD Office as a Government office and also in accordance with ergonomic standards, as well as implementing an activity approach.

The design method used in this final project consists of 2 types of methods, namely : Observation method by conducting direct surveys in the field, interviews and literature studies. The second method is the data analysis method, the analysis is carried out on books, the internet, and also from other sources.

The redesign of the office interior of the Regional House of Representatives by applying a transparent and efficient approach to activities is expected to answer all the problems that existed in the previous office interior, so that the Regional House of Representatives of Banggai Laut Regency can meet standards in accordance with government regulations.
