

Abstract

Schools or also known as educational institutions are something that is formal and non-formal. School is a learning and teaching institution as well as a place to receive and provide learning. Darul Hikam Dago Giri Bandung High School is one of the best Islamic educational institutions or schools in Bandung, West Java, which is under the auspices of the Darul Hikam Foundation. The learning process in schools can run optimally if it is supported by an interior space that suits the needs of its users. The purpose of this redesign is to create a space and learning environment that can provide an approach to students, by reducing the level of student saturation in learning, increasing student creativity. In addition, to be able to maximize activities and provide comfort for students, teachers and staff. This research began by collecting data through observation and studying field project designs, conducting interviews with related parties, and taking documentation of existing conditions, as well as conducting literature studies related to design. The result of this research is an interior design that can help optimize activities in the school environment, especially in learning activities.
