Akell Ahmed, 1604190022, 2023, Visualization of Loneliness in the Human Mind in the Form of an Experimental Film Titled Loneliness “Final Project: Fine Arts Study Program, Faculty of Industry, Telkom University”

Loneliness is an interrelated aspect in the study of human mental well-being. Loneliness reflects feelings of isolation and a lack of deep social connections, with the potential to lead to feelings of alienation. On the other hand, expression is a form of emotional communication that involves body language, facial expressions and artistic gestures. It plays an important role in facilitating social interaction and relieving emotional stress. However, depression is a deeper stage of a mood disorder, with symptoms including ongoing feelings of sadness, loss of interest, and physical disturbances. It can appear as a result of persistent loneliness or as a result of limitations in expressing emotions. This is not just a feeling of passing, but an influence that affects everyday mentality and social interaction. This is influential for the writer to make the context in the form of an experimental film for his final project.

The results of this work will show how to visualize if a personality feels lonely in a situation in the form of an experimental film. The writer chose this theme because the writer feels that she has been in that situation and will be assisted by playing with colors, angles, cinematography, gestures or expressions and other sounds.
