Times are growing, as well as competition between businesses is getting tougher in this digital era, demanding business owners to re-strategize and plan more efficient business plans. As competition creates limitless choices, companies look for ways to connect emotionally with consumers by making them irreplaceable with others thereby creating long-term relationships because of the trust in a brand. A strong brand is a brand that is able to compete in the midst of many competitors in the market. This research is based on the Seafood & Pecel Lele Millennium 2000 Restaurant due to the lack of implementation of a promotional strategy, by making long observations the restaurant has sufficient target markets to be used as a consideration for making a design. In data collection methods, don't forget to also conduct interviews, observations, questionnaires, and literature studies.
