Currently, the Syiah Kuala University Dental and Oral Hospital is one of the health service facilities that organizes dental and oral health services. The Syiah Kuala University Dental and Oral Hospital which is currently operating used to be a regional archive office building which is now converted into a hospital building, so that the Syiah Kuala University Dental and Oral Hospital still has problems in the dental hospital which are also related to the interior such as organization and spatial layout that has not been well organized so that the space has not been maximally utilized. Therefore, the research aims to create a redesign of the interior of this dental and oral hospital with a better spatial layout and can provide comfort while doing work activities from the current interior design, so that the redesign of the interior of the Syiah Kuala University Dental and Oral Hospital is to be able to facilitate the needs of dental and oral health service facilities and infrastructure by making a comfortable hospital atmosphere both physically and psychologically for users.
