

ABSTRACT

Family is a part that we cannot separate from life. Family is the first place a person starts his life, and family has a very close relationship between father, mother and children. This relationship occurs between family members interacting with each other. This interaction creates closeness within the family, in normal circumstances and in the environment. The first people who make contact with a child are parents, siblings, and perhaps relatives who live at home. It is in this environment that children begin to learn about the world around them and social patterns. In this moment, the millennial generation wants to immortalize every good and bad moment in their life by using electronic media such as a camera to immortalize the moment and visualize it as a work in their life. The increasing phenomenon of family breakdown in modern society. Broken home is a situation where a family is no longer intact due to divorce, separation or prolonged conflict between family members. This condition can have a negative impact on the psychological and emotional development and social well-being of children. The author's goal is to find effective solutions to minimize these negative impacts. The author also provides advice for parents and educators on how to accompany children who have broken families, so that parents think more about their children's mental health. The benefits expected from this author are a better understanding of the impact of damaged households on children's growth and development. And provide effective solutions to help children escape from broken families. Increase parents' awareness of the importance of family for children's welfare. that children who live in messy homes tend to experience higher levels of emotional, academic and social problems than children who live in intact homes. As a result, with full support from parents, schools and the community, these negative impacts can be minimized. Author's advice: Parents who are divorced or separated should try to maintain good communication and cooperation in raising their children. Schools and educators need to provide special attention and support to children from broken home families.
