

This book discusses the management of materials and the control of material costs in a business enterprise. It emphasizes purchasing as a primary materials activity, however it also explicitly integrates the purchasing activity with all other materials activities. Further, the book views the purchasing and materials function in the context of a total business operation, it consistently related this function to relevant activities in the engineering, production, marketing, and finance functions, as well as to the business as a whole.

