

There's no question that today's business environments are rapidly changing. And that's why John Schermerhorn's new Seventh Edition of MANAGEMENT gives you the knowledge and skills they need to succeed, no matter what the future holds! No other management text makes a stronger connection to today's dynamic new workplace, offers as many career-enhancing resources, and is more thoroughly integrated with the webth

As you read the text, you'll find numerous web links that encourage you to use the internet to explore topics in more depth. In addition, the seventh edition provides a wealth of valuable web-based resources at the E-Resource centre (www.wiley.com/college/schermerhorn). The e-resource center features:

- .Study guide – powerpoint chapter outlines and interactive self-testing.
- .Interactive cases – online case studies for each chapter in the text.
- .Interactive self-assessments-assessments for managerial style and readiness.
- .The career advancement portfolio – student career planning and advancement templates, as well as an outcome assessment framework.
- .Fast company articles – selected thought-provoking articles from fast company magazine.
- . Reality checks – sections that challenge students' assumptions of what they think they know about the business environment.
