

ABSTRACT

Final project class is a subject that held in the means to help students who will working on their final project, its studying system is same with another regular subjects, which are numbers of meeting held in the class. This web application is made to support final project I class on its role as student helper and facilitator of students as they are doing their final project. the features that we can use in this web application among others are title filing, recommended supervisor lecturers searching, online guidance, etc.

This web application is using PHP as its scripting language and MySQL as its database, Test are done on 3 subject namely functional test, performance test, dan subjective test. Functional and performance tests were performed using the web software assistance Webserver stress tool v7, meanwhile subjective test is done with survey to 30 respondents that consist of 25 students, and 5 lecturers

. From the test results shows that every menus on this web is doing well, and capable of handling up to 50 users simultanous. This web application is rated by 76% respondents, is helpful for students who working on final project.

Keywords : Final project, Web, PHP, MySQL