ABSTRACT

Rumah Sakit Umum Sawerigading Palopo is one of the hospital that giving us a healthy services. One of its service is in the medical recording system whom recording the data of their medical patient for the daily taking care unit, accordance with this,an application for managing the medical recording data of its medical patient.

Therefore, this final project is entitled "Management Information System Application of Daily Taking Care Unit Rumah Sakit Umum Sawerigading Palopo" is the media which is taking care of the managing and saving the medical recording system in Rumah Sakit Umum Sawerigading Palopo. Its function include the managing medical patient data, recording the incoming and the outgoing medical patient, and recording the medical activity on the daily taking care unit.

This final project is built using software application engineering;waterfall method, and implemented using a PHP programming language and MySQL for managing its database.

Key Words: management information system of hospital daily taking care unit