

ABSTRACT

One of economic growth effect is the increasing need for the number of employees in a company. Therefore, every company will hire new employees in accordance with company requirements. These companies use various information media such as newspapers ,radio ,Internet to publish the employee recruitment or job vacancy

Sites like jobsdb, jobindo are a few choices for employers to publish their job vacancy and also used by job seekers to find jobs they want. But at these sites job seekers can only interact with employer not with other job seeker

Based on this case, there will be built the application that facilitate job seeker to interact with employer and job seeker. So, hopefully job seeker not only get information from employer but also from other job seeker. These job search sites will be built with the social networking concept, so that hopefully the job seeker can interact with the other. This application will be built using PHP programming language with Codeigniter and using MySQL database and other supporting software
