ABSTRACT

Install or uninstall applications   on the   operating system is one   of   the tasks of system   administrators. Installing applications remotely then   it will be done to ease the system administrator. Installing the application does not need to be done physically to be in front of the computer.

Final project titled "Multi Application Installation PC On LAN" is made to resolve the issue .Final project was developed using object-oriented programming methods, and use the socket as connections with remote computer In addition, the project is implemented using the Python programming language.

The final project can update your repository, install and uninstall applications remotely. This project can also display the status of which will be given after the command is done.

Keyword: install, uninstall, python, update repository, remote ,lan